

Since you posted the biography of C. V. Howe, I thought you might be interested in this quote from C. V. Howe from the Nov., Dec., Jan., 1897-98 "The Penman and Artist." "I have come to the conclusion that Prof. Zaner's simplified writing is the proper thing, after giving it a fair trial. And I gracefully fall in line and give the Professor the credit which is due him for originating a common-sense style of writing. I like it better than the vertical. I have put simplified to a practical test and know whereof I speak. I use it in my policy work and also in my correspondence, and it is entirely satisfactory to myself and all concerned. Chartron V. Howe, With Northwestern Life Insurance Co."

"Mr. Howe is not only one of the most practical business writers, but he is without doubt one of the very finest writers of the round-hand or engrossing style living." This was the reply in the magazine.
